

Hello, I think the media is corporate owned by just a few, and that the quality of news on TV has turned into tabloid stuff just to get ratings, and that there is no longer any credible journalism or news you can trust on the TV. Furthermore, I think that everything you see on TV is skewed to the right and that that any real political debates you do see (hardball) are a very right wing person debating a slightly right of center person who they cast as a liberal (or try to make you think they're a leftist when they are decidedly not.) You cannot even find a liberal radio talk host. This is because of FCC rules. Journalists are self-policing themselves, real stories aren't coming out and we're seeing fascist perspectives such as shown regularly on FOX represented as real news. Please change your rules re: ownership to include the public so that everything doesn't keep getting skewed to the right. Thank you.
